Cultivating Femininity-Rebecca Corbett 2018-03-31 The overwhelming majority of tea practitioners in contemporary Japan are women, but there has been little scholarship on their experiences of the Japanese tea ceremony. This book fills that gap with an engaging and accessible account of the significant role of the Japanese tea ceremony in the cultivation of feminine traits such as compassion, patience, and self-control. The author explores how women have used the tea ceremony as a means of self-expression and self-improvement, and how it has been used as a tool for social and political change. We learn about the history of the tea ceremony and the role of women in its development, and how it continues to be practiced and enjoyed today. The result is a fascinating and comprehensive treatment of the Japanese tea ceremony, its history, and its cultural significance.

The Cha no Yu is examined in relation to the experiences and understanding of the Cha no Yu by Chinese, Korean, and Japanese audiences. It is argued that the Cha no Yu is an important metaphor for national character in Japan, and that the Cha no Yu is an important metaphor for national character in Japan.
